

THE CHAIR OF INTERNATIONAL POLISH STUDIES AT THE UNIVERSITY OF SILESIA

Offers international Polish studies (regular, M.A.) in three specialisations: cultural consulting, cultural journalism and translation studies.

The programmes educate experts in culture in international relations, prepare for jobs requiring intercultural competence and train competent, professional and skillful candidates for posts in institutions of cultural animation and creation.

Career perspectives:

- cultural, business and political institutions on international level
- various media (press, television, electronic): journalist, cultural issues expert
- international journalism
- home and foreign (incl. EU) institutions of exchange, cooperation and management
- international scientific and cultural institutions
- expert in other-culture norms and behaviours (meetings, conferences, negotiations)

Students participate in attractive practice in institutions professionally related to a given specialisation. During their studies they can take advantage of internships, scholarships and practice abroad, offered by international programmes (in Europe and on other continents).
